THE BORDEN-JURY CASE.

Judge Boardman has a champion (?) who sneaked into the Gazette last Saturday under the nom de plume of "Citizen," and made an attempt to reflect the Judge's side of the little unpleasantness, and to extricate him from the vortex into which he so injudiciously and unnecessarily thrust himself. It is evident that "Citizen," be he who he may, was not present when the unjust tirade against the two juries was so wantonly and vindictively indulged in, or that he is not honest. There were present Judges Webster, Haydon, King, Cossitt, Marshall, Lindsay, Alexander, Allen, Stone, of Virginia City, Messrs. J. H. Kinkead, R. V. Borden, Frank Borden and the officers of the Court. All these heard what was said and appreciated not only the matter but manner of saying it. We appeal to them as to whether we mistated anything of the much that was so unbecomingly said from the Bench. For the sake of Justice and right to all, we suggest that "Citizen" interview these men, rather than permit his credulity to be imposed upon as it has been. He says "the Judge refuses to assume a position which could be construed by any possibility into apologizing, in any shape for the righteous scathing he administered to that recreant jury." This assertion shows that "Citizen" has been near the throne, that his pen picture is the work of an interested artist, who would much rather paint, to please, from fancy, than to follow the outline of the model of truth. The stubborn fact is the Judge dare not deny by reason of the evidence against him that he did not say what was reported in the JOURNAL, and much more. We never have been a friend to crime nor criminals. We have never attempted to throw even the veil of charity over anything Frank Borden may have done. We have no personal nor political aspirations to serve in advising the public and two outraged juries what was said, and who said it. Our editorial comments were caused from a sense of duty. The press is the avenue through which wrongs are righted. It gives the wind that agitates and purifies the social, political and judicial world. Had the evidence warranted a conviction of Frank Borden either jury had the moral courage to render a verdict of guilty, and would have done so. The crime charged was revolting, and without question did create, when presented, a feeling of prejudice in the minds of the jurors against the accused. The charge was one thing, the proof of it another. On a failure of the latter, so said twenty men, the case fell, and with it the Judge fell, by the abuse of his position and the men whose characters are even above suspicion. The puerile and weak apology shadowed by "Citizen" for the Judge, expressing his views behind the backs of the juries, is unworthy of comment, much less the dignity of a man and the bench. We say that Judge Boardman did say all that the JOURNAL reported, that we do not retract one word of our former comments, that our course was not and is not prompted by personality, but by a desire to protect the purity and sacredness of the jury box against the lash of the Court, to give legal protection to men charged with crime, and to assure to them the fair and impartial trial our Constitutions, National and State laws have guaranteed to all, whatever their offenses may be.

The President and Civil Service.

The President's letter on the civil service is generally discussed by politicians. It was regarded as leaving no doubt now as to the policy the President desires to pursue. There are, of course, some Democratic members who will not converse on the subject. It is hard for them to reconcile themselves to the President's will. "And there is no denying that the President has a will of his own," said a politician the other day, "but it is hard, nevertheless, on the men who have worked so hard for the Democratic party."

THE CURSE OF THE PACIFIC COAST.

S. T. Gage on Chinese Cheap Labor.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

Stephen T. Gage, a native of Northern Ohio, has lived in California thirty-eight years. For the past fifteen years he has been connected with the Central and Southern Pacific Railroads, and is now assistant to Mr. Stanford, President of the whole Pacific system of this coast. Brought up on a farm, Mr. Gage has a good practical knowledge of agricultural matters, and is now managing a farm of 35,000 acres. His railroad duties have forced upon him a knowledge of nearly every business or industry on the Pacific Slope, including mining, for he was actively engaged in that for years. But, above all, Mr. Gage is an honest man, and whether right or wrong, believes in all things which he advocates. Being a man of good sense, his conclusions on matters outside of railroad affairs are accepted by those who know him as sound and worthy of consideration. Such a man with his wide experience, cannot but have sound opinions on the Chinese question, the one subject which is of more importance to the people of the Pacific Coast than all other economic questions. He says:

I am opposed to Chinese Immigration because on an even keel the white man cannot compete with him in any of the pursuits requiring physical labor. I have made a comparative study of the white and Chinese working people in every avocation. I have never seen a Chinaman who could not read and write in his own language. They are the now most docile people up to a certain point in their employment, and that point is where they believe they have acquired sufficient knowledge of the business at which they are employed to carry it on themselves. They are an imitative race, but they originate nothing, as is shown by the fact that their whole civilization stands where it certainly was 1,000 years ago, barring the innovations forced upon them by other nations.

The degradation of white labor is therefore a natural sequence of competition with this class of persons, and I think that any observer will soon see that the introduction of Chinese in California has established in thirty years as distinct a line of demarcation between labor and capital as slavery did in the 240 years of its existence in the old States, with the disadvantage here of there being fewer restraints of all kinds on the aristocratic element. Less than five hundred men own fully one-half the property of this great State, and they are able to retain their vast estates because of the presence of the Chinese laborer and at the same time pay less than half the taxes. In thirty years we have made this vast gulf between the two classes, and, while the products of all the rest of the country are based upon the labor of property-consuming white men, the products of California represent the low wages of the Chinese, for every white producer who employs only his own labor must compete with them in the various markets. The employer of Chinese starts with an advantage over the person whose marketable products are the result of his own labor.

Practical illustrations of this fact are visible on every hand. Take gardening, for instance, and the sale of vegetables. The large gardener, paying sixty cents per day to the Chinese laborer, who boards himself, can afford to sell to the peddler for less than the ordinary white man can afford to produce vegetables. This would seem to give the poor white man a chance to monopolize the retailing of vegetables, in case the Chinese employing gardener did not choose to do it himself. But if you look out of the window you will notice more than a dozen Chinese vegetable peddlers, whose outfit consists of two baskets and a light stick. At one time we weighed all of these baskets on our ferries, and found that the average weight of vegetables which one Chinaman carries is 250 pounds. A white man could not move this quantity of vegetables without a horse and wagon. A horse and wagon of the worst sort represents an expenditure of not less than $100. To this must be added the feed and care of the horse, shoeing, stable rent, and repairs to wagon and harness. To make cost, the owner of the horse and wagon must make at least $1 per day of profit. If he lives, or has any family, he must make at least $2 per day. The Chinaman can sell at a less price and make the same net profit that the white man can. If he makes but fifty cents per day profit he has at least thirty cents to lay by.

The Restriction Act was a godsend to the resident Chinese, if it had been carried out as Congress intended it. Last year when the current seemed to be going from us, the Chinese harvest hand advanced his wages from $1 to $1.50, and in some cases to $2. But this year, with the tide flowing this way again, the wages went down to the point at which no white man could earn enough to pay for bread and decent clothes. And this is true of every line of labor. This leads me to the question which has for some years prevented immigration to this State, and will continue to prevent it so long as the stream of Chinese labor pours in upon us. Except the railroad grants and the title Government land now subject to entry, as I said before, five hundred men own one-half the agricultural lands of the State. So long as these men can compete with the other half of the land-owners, with this cheap labor, they will never subdivide their immense tracts of land, or part with them at a price which would allow the ordinary farmer to make a living off of them by his own labor. It is a settled principle of political economy that a community which is a consumer is also a producer. A Chinese population is not a consuming population. In other words, if the hundred thousand Chinese laborers were whites, they would consume at least three times as much as the Chinese do, and thus create a local demand for three times greater production. At least two-thirds of the clothing and personal effects of the Chinese are brought from China, so that we can say that practically they add nothing to the wealth of the State by their consumption, and all the wages paid them for their labor is sent out of the country.

The Asiatic civilization may be higher than ours. I don't care how they class it, but it will not amalgamate with ours, nor can people with our civilization live under it. We have passed the point which the framers of the Constitution had in view when they invited the oppressed of all nations to seek an asylum on our shores. We are now bound to protect our own people, and while we maintain free schools and teach our children to use luxuries unknown to the Asiatics we must not expect them to compete in the race of life with a class of toilers who can subsist on what would not have fed and clothed a slave in the Cotton States. If the railroads are to prosper they must have a consuming and, consequently, a productive population, and this cannot be until we are rid of the Chinese laborers.

Sheridan and His Staff.

Gen. Sheridan has decided not to yield the point in regard to the detailing of his staff officers without a contest with the Secretary of War. He has issued an order continuing his present staff officers on duty until October 10th, they having previously been ordered to be relieved on October 1st. He is now going to call upon the President to argue the matter. He holds that the commanding officer of the army ought to be allowed to pick out his own staff officers. He intends, if possible, to retain his present staff officers permanently. If the will of the people were consulted there would be pretty nearly a unanimous verdict that little Phil was fully competent and best fitted to choose his own associates.

Reform has already begun in the appointment of teachers in Indian schools. The practice has been for the agent to appoint them, and agents have usually appointed their wives, sisters, daughters aunts or cousins, except in rare cases. Already two training schools have been separated from agencies, so that the superintendent of the school is the responsible officer empowered to select teachers. It is intended to carry this change clear through the training schools.

New York World.

Mr. John Mackay, unlike most millionaires, is not at all selfish or avaricious, but is evidently desirous that all about him should flourish and enjoy themselves. He has probably helped more men on in the world than any other two men; indeed, it may be said that his associates owe their prosperity to his friendly sympathy. He is always ready to aid any one in whom he has confidence—that is, if they have a good scheme. It would be writing him down a fool to say that his purse could be controlled by every one; but let a friend whom he believes in, introduce a scheme and whether it is a hotel, a new telegraph or a novel cannon he is ready to invest if he can figure good interest on his money. In this way he finds investment for his immense and rapidly accumulating fortune which naturally he does not want to always keep in mines. He is a thorough business man, cool and calculating, and reckons to get his money back while at the same time assisting his friend. Luck may have founded his fortune in striking it rich in the mines for him, but business tact has increased it to many millions. In business he knows no friend and claims all that is coming to him, and goes in to win if the rest of the world is wrecked. He is a familiar presence in the metropolis this season, and his unassuming manner, quiet dignity and geniality attract many around him with no business scheme or any intent save friendly intercourse. He always has his table at the Hoffman set for six, and, if he has no party arranged, insists upon the first six of his acquaintances who come in joining him.

Secretary Lamar's trouble appears to be hay fever with some serious complications. He has had an operation performed on his nose, and physicians have been in constant attendance on him.

Postoffice Box Rents.

Postmaster Evans has received imperative orders that he must collect the Postoffice box rents quarterly in advance, as required by the postal law, as shown by the following section:

Sec. 301. Postmasters must rent the boxes and drawers in their postoffices for one-quarter (three months) only, the money to be paid in advance. The Department will insist upon a strict compliance with this regulation. Boxes remaining unpaid for ten days from the expiration of a quarter will be declared vacated.

As the Postmaster has no option but to obey the orders of the Department, Mr. Evans, will hereafter require box rent to be paid quarterly in advance, (as must be shown by the stub book of his receipts, which have to be sent to Washington) and those failing to make payments in this matter will not be permitted the use of boxes.

Accident to Mr. Jennings.

While out riding yesterday morning Rev. G. Jennings was overtaken and struck by Henry Whistler's runaway team, and the old gentleman was considerably bruised and shocked, but not, it is understood, seriously hurt. The accident happened down by Lee's corral.

A Good Melodrama.

"The Wages of Sin" was produced by the Baldwin Theater Co. at the Nevada Theater last night, and proved to be one of the strongest plays ever performed for the benefit of a Reno audience. The cast was a good one, and the acting, upon the whole, very good. Miss Phoebe Davies was really grand in two of the acts, and was called before the curtain. Jos. R. Grismer made the most of the part of the Curate, but we prefer to see him in Monte Cristo. The others of the troupe did well, and the performance deserved and received the praise of all present. The Journal hopes the troupe will swing around this way again soon.

Closing Day at Greenville.

Last Friday closed the Greenville Fair. The free for all trotting race, mile heats, was won by Lee's Crabb in three straight heats, Overland second, Maxwell third. Best time, 2:35 1/2. The special pacing race was won by Black Point. Best time, 2:42. The novelty race was quite exciting, five horses starting. It was won by Dyson's Lige Clark taking all the points, making the quarter in :25 1/2, the half in :50 1/2, the three quarters in 1:30 1/2, and the mile in 1:47 1/2. The other races were unimportant.

The Union Depot Hotel, Ogden.

The Ogden News says: However disgraceful and disheartening to native and newcomer the present depot structure may be, there is one eminently redeeming feature about it, namely, the excellent caravanserai kept by mine host, H. A. Clawson, under the shield and advice of Union Depot Hotel. Under his able, tasteful and conscientious management that holistry has achieved a reputation the fragrance of which is as odorous as are the rich fumes arising from the kettles, pots and pans of the well stocked kitchen, where efficient gastronomic artists officiate. The dining room, indeed, is a thing of beauty, its ornaments reflecting great credit upon the taste and enterprise of the proprietor.

One thing worthy of special attention and mention is the fact that Mr. Clawson purchases all the supplies for his larder and pantry in the home market, thus furnishing an outlet for a good deal of local produce. For this very reason, if for no other, we wish and hope that the intended and reported scheme of having the Ogden depot eat-house swallowed up by two well-known Omaha railroad hotel combinations will fail. For then our butchers, bakers, grocers, and farmers will lose many a dollar that is now paid to them by Mr. Clawson; whereas on the other hand, if the Omaha octopus gets control of our depot hotel, the supplies will be imported from abroad.
